A Wind of change at LETO Maternity Hospital
Full-scale in-house renovation completed

A wind of change has blown through HYGEIA Group's LETO Maternity Hospital, which just released its fully-renovated Delivery Suite to the public. With the inauguration of the Delivery Suite, LETO has completed a full-scale renovation of its premises, in accordance with its commitment for the continuous upgrading of its services.

Latest-generation equipment, luxurious labor rooms and pleasant surroundings embrace our unique high-quality services, which now include the options of water birth, home-like birth, yoga and childbirth education classes, as well as acupuncture and psychology support services for our pregnant women.

These innovative services, combined with actively promoting breastfeeding, rooming-in and the support provided by qualified doctors and experienced nursing staff, have rendered LETO a prototype family-friendly maternity hospital.

Leonidas Papadopoulos, LETO's chief executive officer, stated: "It is very important to take such initiatives, which reflect our constant commitment towards both the medical community and the women who put their trust in our hands. I must emphasize that, in line with LETO's dedicated competitive price policy, such innovations do not carry any additional financial burden for the clients. Even under the shade of the current adverse financial climate, LETO demonstrates that it continues to support new parents, as it has done for the last 40 years, by providing affordable, high-standard medical services."
